B47 Survivor Found; At Least Two Men Dead

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI)—The Air Force Sunday found two bodies in the wreckage of a B47 bomber a few hours after the co-pilot of the ship was found alive.

A rescue party was rushed to the scene at dusk, 10 miles southwest of Old Faithful in Yellowstone National Park. The fate of the other member of the four-man crew still was a mystery.

An Air Force spokesman said they had not identified the two crew members found in the wreckage of the airplane which collided in the air Friday night with a KC135 tanker plane.

The tanker limped to Mountain Home, Idaho, Air Force Base, with a damaged wing but landed safely without further incident after the Friday night collision. The bomber crashed and burned on an 8,500-foot plateau.

Earlier Sunday, an Air Force search plane "homed in" on radio signals to find the only known survivor of the crash, Bruce A. Chapman, 33, co-pilot of the bomber. Chapman had parachuted from the stricken ship after the air-to-air collision.

Chapman was picked up by an Air Force helicopter in the Belcher Valley of southwestern Yellowstone Park about 10 miles southwest of Shoshone Lake. He was in good condition. He was brought here for a debriefing, a news conference and a preliminary medical check-up and then taken to Mountain Home Air Force Base for a reunion with his family and further medical tests.

"Thank God!" said his mother, Mrs. Jesse Chapman, Mountain Home, Idaho, when she learned he was safe.

"What a relief!" said his wife, Mary when she learned of his rescue. "I woke up this morning and had a wonderful ray of hope that he would be found. This is my birthday. This is the most wonderful present I could have had."

"It's my only child," added the mother.

Monetary Fund Director Dies

LONDON (AP)—Per Jacobsson, 69, director of the International Monetary Fund and one of the world's most influential economists, died Sunday of a heart attack.

A hospital spokesman said the Swedish economist entered Middlesex Hospital a week ago for a checkup.

"He had a heart attack while he was here and then his condition worsened," the spokesman added.

In addition to a distinguished career as an economist and banker, Jacobsson wrote two detective novels in collaboration with former Liberal party legislator Vernon Bartlett. "The Death of a Diplomat" and "The Alchemy Murder Case" both were made into films.

Jacobsson took over as director of the fund in 1956. He also was the chairman of its board. His chief task was guiding the nations of the West in assuring free exchange of currency as a stimulus to world trade.

City Police Boss Yields, Permits Demonstration

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — More than 1,000 Negroes peacefully paraded to a park near Birmingham city jail Sunday where police commissioner Eugene Connor in a dramatic reversal of policy permitted them to pray and sing.

It was one of the largest planned demonstrations ever staged in the southern civil rights struggle.

Fire trucks were brought out but were not used as they had been to put down demonstrations Friday and Saturday.

The Negroes sang as they marched to a park about 300 yards from city jail where more than 1,000 Negroes arrested in previous demonstrations were being held.

Connor Halts Marchers

After marching more than three blocks, the Negroes were stopped on the orders of Connor.

"Do not let them go past this corner," Connor shouted to a police captain. "Hold them until the fire wagons get here."

A fire captain asked Connor if he wanted water used.

"Hold it, let's give them another chance. Captain, ask them to leave again," Connor said.

The unidentified police officer talked with the Rev. A. D. King, brother of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. King said the Negroes only wanted to go to the park to continue their worship service.

The officer talked with Connor and the Negroes were then given permission to cross the street and go into the park. "Do anything you want to there as long as it is orderly," the officer said.

15-Minute Service

The Negroes sang and prayed for about 15 minutes then returned to church, walking in rows of two.

Never before had Connor permitted such an activity.

A large crowd had gathered at the church. Police blocked off the area and walked through the crowd telling everyone: "Let's keep moving."

The Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, executive secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was in the group, the first time he had taken an active part in the demonstrations.

The area is in a predominantly Negro district 20 blocks from the downtown area.

Hundreds of Negro spectators watched the marchers, but there were only a few white persons on hand in the area of the church.

Baltimore Couple Perishes In Blaze

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Baltimore man and his wife died Sunday when neighbors were unable to rescue them from their burning two-story home.

Firemen said the body of Edward H. Kerr, 32, was found on the stairs and the body of his wife, Nancy, 30, in the second-floor hall. Both died of smoke inhalation.

Fire department officials said the fire apparently started in a sofa on the first floor.

Three neighbors saw the flames and attempted to get into the house. However, they were driven back by the intense heat.

Three Kennedy Wives Soon Will Begin Stork Watch In Seclusion On Cape Cod

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three expectant mothers have to face when they're in Washington. The President and his senator-brother have summer homes on Squaw Island, an area of about six summer estates, accessible from the mainland only by a narrow causeway, guarded by town police.

About half a mile away is the famous Kennedy compound, where the President's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Britain, has a big, sprawling seaside home, surrounded by cottages usually occupied by his sons and daughters. Mrs. John F. Kennedy may stay there until the Squaw Island place becomes available.

Robert Kennedy will continue to use his white cottage in the compound, close to sand, surf and sailboats.

This summer, though, it will be a hideaway from the limelight all three expectant mothers have to face when they're in Washington.

All 55 Aboard African Plane Killed In Crash

DOUALA, Cameroon (AP) — A four-engine airliner flying from this West African city to Lagos, Nigeria, slammed into a mountain Saturday night, killing all 55 persons aboard, authorities reported Sunday.

The burned wreckage was spotted shortly after dawn Sunday on the south side of Mt. Cameroon near the Nigerian border, authorities said. The spotter planes said there was no possibility of survivors.

Among the 48 passengers were Bertrand Dagnon, secretary-general of the African and Malagasy union of former French colonies, authorities reported. The plane carried a crew of seven.

The control tower lost contact with the DC6 of the Air-Afrique Airline at about the time the aircraft's flight plan called for it to be near Mt. Cameroon.

Sunday morning a plane spotted blackened wreckage scattered over a wide area about 6,600 feet up the mountainside.

Authorities said they were baffled about the cause of the crash. The weather was perfect for flying, light winds and a clear sky, with the mountain clearly visible.

The Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, executive secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was in the group, the first time he had taken an active part in the demonstrations.

Algeria Goes In Mourning For Khemisti

Foreign Minister
Shot 24 Days Ago
By Assassin Dies

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Algerian Foreign Minister Mohammed Khemisti died Sunday, the victim of an assassin's bullet, while crowds hailed visiting President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

Death came to the foreign minister 24 days after a fanatic of Pan-Arabism pumped a pistol bullet into his head outside the National Assembly. Khemisti, 33, had just returned from a trip to the Middle East and was critical of some of the actions and unity moves of the Arab world. He favored Algeria's close cooperation with France.

Nasser's Visit Clouded

The death threw a dark cloud over Nasser's official visit to Algeria, begun with a triumphant entry into the capital Saturday.

Official functions and parties were canceled and guests were turned back from the gates of the National Assembly where a reception for Nasser was to be held.

But for hours crowds crisscrossing the streets knew nothing of the mourning which befell Algeria. Firecrackers exploded and youths hailed Nasser as the father and hero of Arab unity.

Radio Algiers, in proclaiming Monday a day of national mourning, said: "Brother Khemisti died at his combat station."

Had Been In Coma

The government offered its condolences to the family of the deceased minister and thanked the "Algerian and foreign medical corps" for its efforts to save him.

Khemisti had been in a coma since he fell in a pool of blood outside the assembly building overlooking Algiers Harbor.

Eminent French and Soviet brain surgeons were unable to perform the life-saving operation of extricating the bullet from his brain. The Algerians turned down help offered by U.S. doctors, and his heart finally failed.

Republican leaders reassessed Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's political future Sunday in the wake of his marriage, and many now believe it will not harm him.

A sample of political thinking just prior to the marriage, Saturday, had shown many Republican committeemen and women fearful that the marriage would hurt the governor's chances for the presidency. But since the marriage the trend seems to be swinging the other way.

Arthur Elliott Jr., Michigan GOP state chairman, commented: "I don't think this remarriage changes his political picture at all. I think it is a personal matter and the people of this country are making decisions on who they want to be a candidate for president on a basis which is somewhat different from the past when they took things of a personal nature more seriously."

Robert Pierce, Wisconsin GOP national committeeman, said: "I think it will cause something of a furor immediately, but it won't have any long-range effect on his political future. Just because no divorced man has ever been elected president doesn't mean we won't have one sometime. After all, we never had a Catholic president before, either."

However, Mrs. Fletcher Swan, Republican national committeewoman of Colorado, maintained: "I think our friend Rocky has gone too far." The remarriage, she added, "will have a serious effect on his chances to even be considered a candidate."

Howard Corcoran, West Virginia state GOP chairman, said: "I think it's too early to forecast its ultimate effect. People will be inclined to take a cooler look at the situation before convention time rolls around."

Ella Koeze, Michigan Republican national committeewoman, said: "My own personal opinion is that this is one of Gov. Rockefeller's own private affairs. I don't think it's going to make any more impact on the women of America."

Webster B. Todd, New Jersey GOP chairman, and his wife, a former GOP national committeewoman, said any political damage Rockefeller may have suffered came after his divorce, and added that marriage may help him.

"People like to see a wife by a candidate's side," said Mrs. Todd. "If this gal is all they say she is," commented Todd, "she may help him."

Earphones Banned

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The Nationalist Chinese government issued a ban Sunday on the use of earphones for listening to radio broadcasts.

Authorities said the ban was designed to prevent people from using earphones to listen secretly to broadcasts by the Chinese Communists on the mainland. Listening to such broadcasts is against the law on Formosa.

The departure of the Kennedy wives and children from Washington to the Cape is expected to be a sometime early in June—after schools let out. The three mothers-to-be, Ethel (Mrs. Robert Kennedy), First Lady Jacqueline, and Joan (Mrs. Ted Kennedy), already have a total of 11 children, who form a ready-made play group, enjoying the carefree life by the sea.

In the Kennedy stork race, Ethel Skakel Kennedy, wife of the attorney general comes first. She is the oldest of the trio, having just turned 36, and the child she expects in June will be her eighth.

Ethel says she plans to have this child—as she has three others—at 90-year-old St. Elizabeth's Hospital, in the Brighton section of Boston.

185 Estimated Dead In Egypt Ferry Sinking

CAIRO (AP)—Provincial police began a house count Sunday of villages in the upper Nile region where a ferry loaded with Moslem worshippers capsized, drowning 185 persons, by early estimate.

Authorities said the house count is the only way to determine exactly how many were lost in Saturday's disaster at Minieh, about 150 miles above Cairo.

Wailing relatives still lined the river banks scanning waters for bodies.

Many persons were believed trapped in the sunken hull. A floating crane is being sent from Cairo to try to raise the ancient double-decked craft from the muddy bottom within 100 yards of the shore.

Two versions of the immediate cause of the accident were advanced to the authorities. One said the boat turned over when too many passengers moved to one side. A second version said the boat began to list and passengers rushed to the other side, causing it suddenly to tilt in that direction and overturn.

Of the first 51 bodies recovered, 48 were women and children. Authorities said some dead women taken from the water still clutched their children.

Bodies were taken to a nearby hospital, where a hasty morgue was improvised and victims laid in rows for identification by relatives.

All the victims were farmers and families who had visited a cemetery across the Nile from their villages as part of a Moslem four-day holy vigil which marks the date Alla appeared before Abraham with sheep for a sacrifice instead of his son.

'Martyr' For Freedom

Memorial Service Is Held For Pilgrim

BALTIMORE (AP)—The proper tribute to William L. Moore is not talk, a national integration leader said Sunday, but action to end racial segregation.

The speaker, James Peck, national field secretary for the Congress of Racial Equality, told more than 450 persons at a memorial service for Moore. "We must redouble our non-violent efforts for the end to segregation."

Moore, a Baltimore postman, was shot to death on a highway near Attalla, Ala., April 23 as he made a one-man freedom march from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Jackson, Miss.

He was carrying a letter to Ross Barnett, Mississippi's governor, asking equal rights for Negroes. He was white.

The CORE official said he guessed how Moore must have felt as he was about to die. "I was beaten almost to death in a freedom ride in 1961," Peck said.

Mrs. Moore, who sat quietly in the second pew, shuddered.

The Rev. Irving R. Murray, pastor of the First Unitarian Church, where the service was held, and chairman of the Maryland branch of the American Civil Liberties Union, said Moore burned with a fierce conviction that brotherhood and democracy must prevail.

Murray said he spoke with the 35-year-old pilgrim just before he left Baltimore and promised him the ACLU would provide legal help if he needed it.

"And I told him 'there are some places along your route where legal counsel is not available to someone walking for the freedom and dignity of man,'" Murray said.

Murray said the next he heard from Moore was a four-cent postal card from Trenton, Ga., sent 12 hours before he was murdered. It read:

"Everybody quite hospitable and I'm having a pleasant walk. Feeling quite secure by now, but if anything happened I feel like I wonder if anybody would ever know. The road is a lonely place."

That night a passing motorist found Moore sprawled on the shoulder of the highway, his sandwich signs still about his shoulders. He had been shot twice.

Argument Ends In Man's Death

FEDERALSBURG, Md. (AP)—Edward Bennett Smallwood, 30, was fatally shot early Sunday morning after he tried to intercede in an argument among three women.

State Police charged Oscar James Jenkins, 29, in the slaying. Jenkins was being held in Caroline County jail in Denton without bond.

Police gave this account of the shooting: Jenkins' wife, Mary Virginia Jenkins, became involved in an argument with Dolores and Ida Bolden Saturday evening at the People's Inn. Mrs. Jenkins returned home, picked up a .32 caliber revolver, and located her husband.

The Jenkins then went to Ida Bolden's home. Smallwood and five other persons were there at the time.

The women began arguing again, and Smallwood tried to intercede. Jenkins pulled out the gun from his pocket and aimed it at Smallwood. Mrs. Jenkins hit her husband's arm and the gun went off in the air.

Smallwood was then shot twice, once in the chest and once in the arm. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Jenkins is scheduled to appear in Magistrate's Court Monday evening for a preliminary hearing.

Kennedy Returns From Camp David

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy flew back to the White House by helicopter Sunday night after an abbreviated rest weekend with his family at Camp David in the Catoctin Mountains of nearby Maryland.

The president's two children, Caroline, 5, and John Jr., 2½, wearing Indian headresses, returned with him and scooted from the chopper to the White House door. Mrs. Kennedy remained at Camp David, until Monday. Returning also from the weekend were friends of the Kennedys, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bartlett. Bartlett is a newspaper columnist.

Earlier Sunday, Kennedy attended 10 a.m. Mass at Camp David. Navy and Marine personnel, who operate the presidential retreat, and members of their families attended the church services, too.

Khrush Policies, Not Job, Seen In Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman said Sunday Soviet Premier Khrushchev is not in any difficulties that would endanger his job, but his policies are in trouble. He suggested that Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro was rushed to Moscow to show off on May Day "as the one success they have had" to help overcome the setback Kremlin policies have suffered in Africa, the Middle East, China and elsewhere.

Harriman, speaking in a television interview (ABC-News and Answers), said that during his 3½-hour conference with Khrushchev a week ago he told the Soviet leader of the great importance of withdrawing Soviet troops and other personnel still in Cuba.

Italy Red Boss Makes Pitch For Top Posts

ROME (AP)—Communist chief Palmiro Togliatti, citing Red gains in Italy's national election, made a bid Sunday to get Communists into the government of this Atlantic alliance nation.

He made his move as Premier Amintore Fanfani's center-left alliance, which suffered reverses in last week's polling, showed signs of heading toward an internal crisis.

In a front-page interview in L'Unita, the Communist party organ, Togliatti claimed the more than a million new votes picked up by the Communists proved Italy wants an all-out left-wing government.

"The country asks for a government of the left," he said, "but no government will be able to call itself that if it is founded on the prejudicial exclusion of the Communist party."

"The supporters of the Communist party must be represented in the government."

The Communists have had no Cabinet post in any Italian government since the postwar coalition headed by the late Alcide de Gasperi in 1945, when Togliatti was minister of justice. That was a kind of national unity government, including all parties that had opposed the Fascists. It broke up the same year and the Communists went into opposition.

Togliatti often has appealed for Communist Cabinet posts since. This time his bid could pack more punch than ever before. The election upset brought the Communists to their highest parliamentary strength and the Christian Democrats to their lowest.

The Communist got 25 per cent of the 30 million votes, the Christian Democrats 38 per cent. Fanfani's Christian Democrats remained the biggest party and would have an assured and workable majority in the new Parliament convening May 17 if the center-left alliance holds together. But there is no assurance it will. Encouraged by the Communist showing, pro-Communist members of Pietro Nenni's Socialists are demanding an end to the 15-month collaboration with Fanfani and a return to the old popular front with the Reds.

Freedom Marchers
Vow To Cross 'Bama

EDITORS NOTE—Last Wednesday, an integration group set out on a walk through the South.

An Associated Press writer and a photographer accompanied the group on its three-day walk from Chattanooga, Tenn., to Alabama, where the marchers were jailed. The writer was Jack Stillman, assigned to Alabama by The Associated Press for more than eight years before he was transferred to Atlanta. The photographer was Horace Cort, a veteran of many racial stories throughout the South.

Here is the story of the "Freedom Marchers" and what they hoped to accomplish.

By JACK STILLMAN

FORT PAYNE, Ala. (AP)—Ten "Freedom Marchers" insist they will walk across Alabama, where they are being held in jail after they entered the state last Friday.

The five white men and five Negro men face a hearing in Circuit Court on June 3. Two other Negroes accompanying them in an automobile also were arrested. All are being held under bonds of $300 on breach of peace charges.

"We feel that we haven't done anything; we haven't committed a crime and are being held unjustly," said Bob Zellner, 24, a white man from Mobile, Ala.

Zellner and others in the group talked with an Associated Press writer in their jail cells.

"We want to continue our walk," said James Forman, projects director of the Students Non-violent Coordinating Committee. "I have talked to an attorney and we do not plan to make bond at this time."

The seven Negroes are being held in one cell while the five white men are in individual cells.

The group began its walk in Chattanooga on Wednesday. They planned to retrace the steps of Baltimore postman William Moore, who was shot to death at the Keener community near Attalla, Ala., on April 24.

Moore, a white man, sought to spread the spirit of brotherly love on his intended walk from Chattanooga to Jackson, Miss., where he wanted to give his views on integration to Gov. Ross Barnett.

His body was found near a concrete picnic table beside U.S. 11. A white storekeeper, Floyd Simpson, 41, is free under $5,000 bond in the slaying.

Moore was an atheist, and apparently advertised this fact as he walked along the highway.

"I had no reason to slay him," Simpson told a newsman. "My interest in him was merely as a curious individual. I wanted to talk to a man who, apparently, had no belief or faith in God as I had never talked to a man of this character."

Unlike Moore, the 10 Freedom Marchers say they believe in God. They are of various faiths, and Alabama Gov. George Wallace probably has forgotten a tow-headed youngster who used to be in his Sunday school department at the First Methodist church at Clayton, Ala.

The boy was Sam Shirah, now 20, who was leading the Freedom Marchers when they were arrested at the Alabama state line. Sam's father, the Rev. Sam Shirah Sr., now is pastor of the First Methodist church at Defuniak Springs, Fla. He was Wallace's pastor at Clayton.

"I hope Gov. Wallace remembers me," said Shirah before he was arrested.

Like Moore, the Marchers carried a sandwich sign. It said "Equal Rights For All—Mississippi or Bust" on one side and "Eat at Joe's—Both Black and White" on the other.

Moore was carrying such a sign when he was shot to death with a .22-caliber rifle.

The integration group set out from the bus station at Chattanooga because that was where Moore began his walk.

A woman Church of God preacher told them to have faith, that God would see them through.

"I ain't got no education," she shouted, clutching a Bible in her left hand, "but I got religion. Thank the Lord for that."

Several hundred persons looked on, and traffic jammed Chattanooga streets as the group began the walk.

People along the highway jeered at times. A handful of gravel was thrown at the marchers in Tennessee. Negroes along the way smiled and waved.

Several well-dressed men in a black Jaguar with white sidewall tires stopped beside them and one of the white men said, "Boys, those look like pretty good niggers. I don't know why they walk with the damned Jews."

Tension reached its peak Friday as the marchers neared the Alabama line.

Winston Lockett, 21, Negro of New Haven, Conn., was knocked down on the highway by a white youth. Georgia patrolmen made no effort to apprehend his assailant.

Robert Gore, 31, New York City Negro, was hit on the head with a rock. Neither was knocked out of action and they continued to walk.

The crowd grew during the afternoon, and when the marchers neared Alabama with a stone marker on the line saying, "Alabama Welcomes You," there were nearly 2,000 persons behind the marchers.

The walkers were pelted with rocks and eggs the last few miles.

As they approached the state line, a hush fell over the crowd. This was what they had come to see.

About a dozen Alabama highway patrolmen with billyclubs extended told newsmen: "You cannot cross this line."

After the arrests, Alabama patrolmen opened the highway to normal traffic.

Many times during the walk groups of white persons talked with the demonstrators. Many were curious about the mental makeup and physical appearance of the marchers.

Charley Helton, 34, an insurance salesman from Rossville, Ga., stopped his car and joined in a 40-minute discussion about integration.

Here is a portion of the conversation between Helton and William Hansen, 23, of Cincinnati, Ohio, one of the marchers. Both are white.

Helton: "Everybody knows that racial problems are not restricted to the South."

Hansen: "I honestly believe there are more people of good will in the South than in the North."

Helton: "Then why do you do this? Why are you doing what you are doing?"

Hansen: "We feel that we have a right to walk together. We feel that we have a right to walk through Georgia, Alabama or Mississippi or anywhere else."

Helton: "It seems to me you would accomplish more if you were in the field of education."

Hansen: "We are trying to convey an idea."

Richard Haley, 46, a Negro former teacher at Florida A&M college, was one of the walkers.

"This is what we are trying to do," he said. "We want to talk to these people. When they talk with us, it gives us a chance to demonstrate what we are trying to do."

"This is probably the first time these people have ever approached the racial problem on an intellectual level."

Three Persons
Die In Maryland
Traffic Mishaps

By The Associated Press

Three persons died in separate traffic accidents in Maryland Sunday raising the state's 1963 traffic fatality count to 185, compared with 155 at the same time last year.

William Emory Ransom, 20, of Greenbelt, Md., was killed early Sunday when the car in which he was riding ran off Bowie Race Track Road at Jericho Park Road and struck two trees.

The driver of the car, Dorn K. Brasfield, who suffered minor injuries, was charged with speeding, reckless driving and manslaughter by automobile.

William Bradley Barbary, 37, of Baltimore County, was killed early Sunday morning when his motorcycle ran into the rear of an automobile stopped in the traffic lane of a Baltimore street.

Thomas Grover Stone Jr., 42, of Mechanicsville, was killed early Sunday when his truck went off Maryland 5 in Loveville and crashed into two utility poles and a tree.

Police said Stone apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

Eighth Suspected
Gambler Seized

BALTIMORE (AP) — Internal Revenue Service agents continued their raids on suspected gamblers Sunday and arrested a Baltimore County man on charges of failing to have a $50 federal wagering stamp.

Seven persons were arrested in Maryland Saturday on the same charge.

Five special agents of the IRS Intelligence Division arrested Carlton Averbach, 59, Sunday. Averbach was charged with running a $200,000 to $500,000 yearly sports books operation.

Agents confiscated telephones and betting slips at Averbach's apartment.

Averbach was scheduled to appear before U.S. Commissioner Ernest Volkhart at Aberdeen.

Cost Of Medicare
Proposal Assailed

BALTIMORE (AP)—Dr. M. McKendree Boyer, president of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland, says the proposed King-Anderson Medicare bill will cost Marylanders $28 million more in taxes in the first year.

The faculty's House of Delegates reaffirmed its opposition to the bill Friday. Dr. Boyer said the faculty opposes the measure because the program is wasteful, limited in scope and not in the best interests of the citizens of Maryland and the nation.

The King-Anderson bill would provide limited health care benefits for everyone 65 and over who is eligible for social security and railroad retirement.

Dr. Boyer said that every person who needs health care can receive it through provisions of the Maryland Assistance to the Aging program.

Restoration Of Funds
For Teachers Urged

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP)—A citizens group has urged restoration of funds for 200 new teachers in the Montgomery County budget.

The group, called the Committee for the Public Schools, told the county council that funds for the teachers can be restored without any increase in taxes if the council will use unappropriated surplus money that will be available at the end of this fiscal year on June 30.

Filipino Envoy
Says Freedom
Is Like Water

FREDERICK (AP)—The Philippine ambassador to the United States told a convention of Jaycees Saturday night that freedom is like water.

"You waste it here and pay no attention to it," the ambassador, Amelito R. Mutuc, "but in Asia it means life or death."

Mutuc told some 750 members of the Maryland Junior Chamber of Commerce that the Jaycee International keeps that freedom alive in the developing nations in Asia.

Mutuc said that in the post-war Philippines the Communists were worse than the Japanese occupation forces had been.

Then came the Jaycees, he said, "showing our young men how to fight for their freedom and dignity."

Before Mutuc spoke, Philip Sisson of Kensington, Md. was named the outstanding Jaycee of the year in Maryland and William Duty of Rockville was named the organization's outstanding new member in the past year.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: So it's the woman who pays, is it? Not always.

In 1962 my salary was $25,000 plus a generous bonus. In 1963 I will make $15,000 after several months of unemployment in Chicago — and then only due to the loyalty of an old friend who is also a disgraced exile from New York.

The reason? A woman who accepted luxuries, love, swore she'd wait forever for God to free him so they could marry and enjoy their love publicly.

After two years she changed her mind and insisted he get a divorce and marry her or she would ruin him. He refused. The woman then set about harassing him at home with telephone calls at all hours of the night. She gathered every scrap of evidence carefully collected over the two years — the cards, notes, letters and pictures. She handed it over to the president of the company. He lost his job.

The woman has been promoted in the firm and is doing better than ever. And the word is around that she is now the mistress of another executive.

The woman pays? Not always.

— FOOL. You got yours, Bub — double in spades. But what makes you think she is home free?

The jury is still out on that doll. Check her in about five years — if she's still around, that is.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the mother of three pre-teens who follow your column closely. You make a lot of sense most of the time, but your views on going steady need clarifying.

The phrase "going steady" does not mean the same thing to all people. When I was in high school (13 years ago) "going steady" meant virtually engaged. Today it can mean the boy-girl combination that works best that week.

The most nerve-shredding example I can give you occurred yesterday. Our 10-year-old daughter, Dora, came home from school and announced that she and Freddie, the freckle-faced kid (also age 10) who lives next door are "going steady."

I was shocked at this statement, and asked, "What do you mean, going steady?—Where do you go?"

Dora replied, "Oh we don't really go any place, mother. He just hits me during recess."

I hope I've made my point.

—DAVENPORT MOTHER

Dear Mother: "From the mouths of babes . . ." Some married people have the same way.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I fell desperately in love with a divorced man. Two weeks before we were to be married his former wife telephoned and asked me to have lunch with her. She had heard I was a fine young woman and wanted to "do me a favor."

I agreed out of sheer curiosity.

How surprised I was at her refined and soft-spoken manner. She was extremely intelligent and didn't fit her description of her.

I listened for three hours as she outlined her 14 years of marriage, described his excessive drinking, violent outbursts of temper and women on the side — including a 17-year-old baby sitter.

I told myself she was lying and I discounted everything she had said. Now, after two years of marriage everything that happened to her has happened to me.

A woman who wants to learn all about a divorced man should talk to his ex-wife. Who knows better than she?

—ALSO AN AUTHORITY

Dear Also: The woman who has been there is bound to know something that a future wife can never know. Such information might be useful, but who listens?

Air Force Seeks To Lease Land From Paper Firm

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force is preparing a directive to start leasing land for the Dare County, N.C., bombing range, a spokesman said Friday.

Congressional approval for the range has been received.

The range, to cover about 48,800 acres, will be under jurisdiction of the Tactical Air Command.

The Air Force says the acreage which it wants to lease is owned by three owners, with the majority of the land belonging to the West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN

(c 1963: By The Chess Tribune)

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠ J 4 ♠ K Q 4 2 ♠ K 8 3 ♠ A 6 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ 1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. An alternate call of three hearts suggests itself but our preference is for the single raise and the deciding factor is the heart spots. With something like the ten of hearts instead of the four we might be inclined to favor a jump rebid in hearts.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ A 6 5 ♠ J 7 3 ♠ A Q J 5 ♠ 10 7 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ 1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. This, to be sure, is a very fine hand but you have already designated a hand of considerable strength by making a free bid at the level of two and a raise to game would do justice to the holding. If partner makes any further inquiry you might admit you have the ace of spades.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠ 10 7 4 2 ♠ Q 8 ♠ A 9 3 ♠ A K 10 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

1 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. Partner's jump response is forcing and, while there's a choice between three no trump and four hearts, the four heart bid is preferred since there is no true spade stopper and since the queen of hearts assumes considerably more importance than it did at the start.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ Q 8 5 4 ♠ A 8 ♠ A 7 3 ♠ Q 10 6 3

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass Pass Pass 1 ♠

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. In view of your previous pass, your cue bid must, of course, be taken by partner with a grain of salt. However, strong encouragement must be given partner to carry on to game. A cue bid might result in partner showing a four card spade suit, in which case we would contract for game in that medium. Otherwise, we would like to induce partner to attempt a game at no trump, inasmuch as he opened in fourth position it is to be presumed that his values are reasonably sound.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠ K 3 ♠ K 10 7 6 5 ♠ Q 8 4 ♠ 7 6 2

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ Double Pass 1 ♠

Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. Now that hearts have been supported you may value your hand at 10 points, and you should rely on partner for 15 points because he has made a take-out double and then offered a single raise.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ 7 ♠ A Q 8 4 ♠ A K J 7 6 3 ♠ 9 8

The bidding has proceeded:

East South

1 ♠ Double Pass 2 ♠

What action do you take?

A.—Double. A mere overall of two diamonds would be inadequate to portray the strength of your hand. If partner responds in clubs you may extricate yourself from the situation by bidding diamonds. If, however, partner bids hearts you may make a distinct effort to reach game in that suit.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ A Q 8 4 ♠ A J 10 3 ♠ 7 2 ♠ K 7 5

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I fell desperately in love with a divorced man. Two weeks before we were to be married his former wife telephoned and asked me to have lunch with her. She had heard I was a fine young woman and wanted to "do me a favor."

I agreed out of sheer curiosity.

How surprised I was at her refined and soft-spoken manner. She was extremely intelligent and didn't fit her description of her.

I listened for three hours as she outlined her 14 years of marriage, described his excessive drinking, violent outbursts of temper and women on the side — including a 17-year-old baby sitter.

I told myself she was lying and I discounted everything she had said. Now, after two years of marriage everything that happened to her has happened to me.

Is Fidel Castro The Real Winner?

Shortly after the Cuban crisis of last October, Fidel Castro courted Communist China with a concentrated effort. Embittered by what he believed was a sell-out by Khrushchev, the fiery Cuban dictator lent an ear to the denunciations of Moscow emanating from Peking.

Now Castro is being feted in the Soviet Union and is saying pleasant things to the Russians. This does not necessarily mean that he has chosen sides firmly in what is generally regarded as a Moscow-Peking contest, for he may visit China later. But it does indicate his pleasure with Soviet help since October.

With the passage of several months since he was forced by Khrushchev to give up some missiles implanted on Cuban soil, Castro has had reason to reflect that he did not emerge so badly from the incident. He got out of it what in effect is a pledge from President Kennedy not to invade Cuba (though not formally proclaimed as such).

In addition, Cuba has received considerable economic aid: an agreement was signed between Cuba and Russia recently providing "several hundred million dollars" of additional Soviet export credits to the island.

Despite this, the next move by Castro may be a cuddling up to Peking. He, like the other communist rulers around the world, finds the communist bloc squabble convenient for bidding one side against the other.

In this area at least, competition between Moscow and Peking is likely to cause the U. S. more trouble. Though neither Mao nor Khrushchev is likely to pin much of his own future on Castro, for prestige reasons alone both are likely to shower him with as much praise and help as they can.

Unfortunately, with the Washington policy that military intervention in Cuba is out of the question, there seems little the U. S. can do to prevent this. Thus Castro may turn out to be the real winner in the long run.

Dr. Spock Steps Out

It's an old story in the United States that when you become a success at one thing, it automatically entitles you to an opinion on everything else. This is not necessarily bad, for to be a success in almost any field you must have a certain amount of shrewdness or talent, which are qualities that carry over into other lines. Cross education is sometimes more productive of true insight and originality than straight education.

There are limits, however, to this business of being a universal genius. I don't say that Dr. Benjamin Spock, the pediatrician whose "The Book of Baby and Child Care" has enthralled millions of mothers, has necessarily gone beyond his natural depth in his latest career as commentator on international relations. He does right to worry about the menace of thermonuclear weapons. I don't like to drink strontium 90 in my milk either. But when the doctor argues that "the exaggerated fear of Communist nations" must cause our children to suffer from a "lowering" of "their optimism and their self-reliance" when they grow up, one wonders a bit about the statement.

In the first place, who is the doctor hitting at? Who holds this "exaggerated fear of Communist nations"? Is it General Lucius Clay? He was so unafraid of the Communists that he stared them down completely at the time of the Berlin airlift. Is it Senator Barry Goldwater? He has said, quite blithely, that he would prefer to be in a pine box than to live in a Communist satellite nation. Is it Brigadier General Frank L. Howley? He is so sublimely unafraid of both Fidel Castro and Nikita Khrushchev that he would start a para-military guerrilla attack on Cuba tomorrow. Is it Harry Truman? He stood up to the Communists without shivering when they threatened to take over such varied places of real estate as Iran, Turkey, Greece and South Korea. True, he didn't always follow through, but that is another story.

The only place where this columnist encounters an exaggerated fear" of Communists is when he talks with followers of such characters as Bertrand Russell. It is the "ban the bomb" unilateral disarmament crowd that quakes in its boots whenever Nikita Khrushchev says "boo." But Dr. Spock doesn't seem to be directing his fire at the exaggerated fears of Bertie Russell and Company, who quibble about "overkill" when the real problem is "underdelivery."

Anyway, the good doctor ought to know that a certain amount of fear can be the most healthy thing in the world. Fear is what gives any animal the impetus of self-preservation. If Dr. Spock had been in the business of advising our ancestors of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries, would he have warned them against worrying overtime about the Indians and their allies, the French? One can fancy him telling the good fathers of Deerfield, Massachusetts, on the night of a certain historic massacre that an "exaggerated fear" of the Mohawk braves might hurt the "optimism" of the coming generation of Puritan children. The kids, of course, would not have lived to test Dr. Spock's opinion of their future. One could have said, in the Seventeenth Century, that it might be better to be Red (Indian) than dead, but the savages that sacked such frontier posts as Deerfield and Schenectady weren't in the mood to grant the opinion.

Davy Crockett rightly feared the Mexicans outside the Alamo, and the kids of America have made Davy one of their heroes. Fear lived with the first settlers of the Dark and Bloody Ground of Kentucky, and because of this fear they put stockades around their settlements. Some of them lived to have children — and it is not on the record that later generations of Kentuckians suffered from a "lowering" of "their optimism and their self-reliance."

If, as Dr. Spock says, our kids are "anxious" about our Cold War policies, it could be because they can see through the doubletalk of their elders who teach them about Patrick Henry and Valley Forge in school and then asquiesce lamely to the Sovietizing of an island ninety miles off the coast of the supposed land of the free. What lowers the self-reliance of any kid is the spectacle of a parent who refuses to stand up for his traditions and his rights.

Liberal Race Record May Handicap Rockefeller

WASHINGTON.

By Joseph Alsop

All the political wiseacres have been declaring in knowing tones that if Gov. Nelson Rockefeller married Mrs. Murphy it would "slow down the Rockefeller bandwagon," or be a "real roadblock at the convention," or "make the state chairman think twice."

Those solemn pronouncements are obviously true. But it would lend a useful touch of honesty to the political dialogue if the other, much greater roadblock that Gov. Rockefeller has to surmount were also mentioned more frequently.

The plain truth of the matter is that Rockefeller's heaviest single handicap, with great numbers of professional Republican politicians, is his aggressively and consistently liberal record on the race issue. On many other subjects, he has recently been sounding a neo-conservative note; but on this subject he stands four-square with Sen. Jacob Javits.

The stand has served him well in New York state; but in the South it has served him very ill indeed. Throughout the South, the leaders of both parties unanimously predict that Rockefeller would lose their states to President Kennedy. This is the main reason why the Rockefeller boom was watched with few signs of disquiet in the White House.

A Republican nomination of Gov. Rockefeller, which is still the most likely outcome, would mean Republican adoption of the very antithesis of the "Southern strategy" long advocated in party conclaves by Rockefeller's most conspicuous rival, Sen. Barry Goldwater.

In other words, the nomination of Rockefeller would mean foregoing the opportunity to pick up large numbers of electoral votes in the Southern and border states. The battle would thus mainly center in the big states, like New York and California. Yet there are also widespread doubts among Republican as well as Democratic politicians, about Gov. Rockefeller's ability to carry his own state against the President.

Seen against this background the general acceptance of the inevitability of Gov. Rockefeller's nomination was a remarkable political phenomenon. It was also a major asset to the Governor for a bandwagon is always very hard to stop in politics.

With the Governor remarried, the main result will be to halt the bandwagon. Unavoidably, the Republican professionals will stop, look, and listen. They will re-assess the odds. They will ask themselves about the availability of other candidates, including Sen. Goldwater, who is catnip for so many Republican contributors.

This re-assessment, in turn, will almost certainly cause an increasing number of Republican leaders to be tempted by the Southern strategy proposed by Goldwater. The essence of this strategy is to surrender to the Democrats the Northern Negroes and other minority groups, on the ground, which has been plainly stated by Goldwater himself, that these groups "always vote Democratic anyway."

The aim of the strategy is to pick up the Southern electoral

MARY SURRATT — In one of the most famous cases of its kind in the annals of American history, Mrs. Mary E. Surratt was executed by the federal government for the part she played in the assassination of President Lincoln.

Ninety-eight years after Lincoln's death, efforts are still being made to clear her name. A Maryland state judge and lifelong resident of Clinton—then known as Surrattsville — is seeking a review of the case.

Speaking for himself and other citizens of the town that had to change its name, Judge Ernest A. Loveless Jr. says they are trying to correct "what we feel is a great injustice to a good woman and to our community as well."

Mrs. Surratt's remains lie in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, in Washington, D.C., and even after all these years, the grave, plainly marked with a stone that carries only the inscription "Mrs. Surratt," is kept decorated. Today, some palm fronds are entwined around the stone and there are some artificial pink flowers there, also. The cemetery superintendent says "it has been going on as long as I can remember," although he has no idea of who is responsible.

For 10 years, he says, he has sought to identify the person or persons who remember Mrs. Surratt. He thinks they might be among her descendants, some of whom still live in the Baltimore area, but he's never seen them.

An Old Enemy Makes The Headlines Again

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

The recent typhoid outbreaks here and there serve to remind us not to be too complacent about some of our old enemies. A few cases are enough to make the front pages of many newspapers today but at one time, more than one-third of all the patients seen by physicians were victims of this disease. This was before the days of modern sanitation and the typhoid vaccine.

The infection continues to plague us because there are many typhoid carriers in the United States and each is a potential source of a widespread epidemic. How troublesome these carriers are depends upon their personal habits, where they live, and what they do.

Those who handle food for public consumption and dairy workers are the most menacing. Others contaminate the water or milk supply. Food becomes a source of infection when the dishes are washed with infected water or the carrier spreads the germs via the hands. Travelers to countries where sanitary conditions are poor must be on the alert for typhoid and other intestinal disorders because the majority of such diseases are passed along in this way. The vaccine is recommended for those traveling in out of the way places. The majority of carriers have had typhoid and recovered but nests of organisms remain in the body long after the active stage subsides. The bacilli favor the gall bladder and occasionally the liver. Most of our modern carriers do not remember having the disease because it was missed or was too slight to warrant medical attention.

As a rule, men or women with a known case of typhoid fever are followed carefully through convalescence and the discharges are examined periodically until the physician is certain all the typhoid organisms within the body are dead. The physician is at fault when he fails to report a case to health authorities.

Every victim of this disease should remain in bed under isolation conditions until the disorder is brought under control. It is best treated with chloramphenicol, an antibiotic that appears to be specific for this infection. Analgesics control headache and muscle pain. Phenylbutazone, an arthritis remedy also is used by European and Asian physician to combat the toxemia of typhoid.

Psychologists Test Public Reaction To Gov. Rockefeller's Remarriage

By Drew Pearson

NEW YORK — The Rockefeller brothers have had a team of psychologists and opinion testers studying the question of whether Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's marriage to Mrs. Margaretta (Happy) Murphy will hurt his chances of becoming President of the United States.

The general consensus has been that the marriage will be a public sensation for a time, but in about five months will have subsided.

This presumably is why Mrs. Murphy went ahead with a divorce which has been reported in the works for a long time. In fact the governor's name had been linked with Mrs. Murphy's ever since he took the initiative in divorcing his wife, Mary Clark Rockefeller, a little over a year ago.

Political observers, who sometimes have their ears closer to the ground than the psychologists, are not so sure the advice given to the Rockefeller brothers is correct. It is true that some New Yorkers are already saying that Nelson deserves credit for his courage in risking his political future by marrying the woman he loves.

On the other hand, here are the factors which may seriously upset the governor's ambition to be president of the United States:

1. No divorced man has ever been elected to the White House. Adlai Stevenson, who ran twice as the Democratic candidate, has confided to friends that his divorce hurt.

2. Some political pundits point out that Grover Cleveland was elected, despite the fact that he acknowledged an illegitimate child. At that time however, women did not vote. Furthermore, the issue in regard to Cleveland became one of loyalty to the child whom he had supported and acknowledged. In the case of Rockefeller, the case is one of disloyalty to a wife.

Mrs. Murphy's Children

3. The issue of children is also involved in the Rockefeller divorce. Mary Rockefeller had borne five children by the governor and Mrs. Murphy had four children by her husband.

At the time of the original Rockefeller separation, one son was lost in New Guinea, but the governor went ahead with the divorce despite this loss and despite his wife's sorrow. It is significant that none of the Rockefeller children were present to be photographed with their father when he was elected governor the second time.

The case of Mrs. Murphy's children is also not one to win Republican votes. Her brood of four range from eleven to about eighteen months, and a relative who called her husband immediately after the divorce found him having great difficulty.

He had received 60 phone calls from newspapermen in one day and found it so embarrassing to the children to know what was happening that he took them with him to work at the Rockefeller Institute, where he is engaged in research.

It is well known that Dr. Murphy did not want the divorce, just as Mrs. Rockefeller did not. He had taken Mrs. Murphy, aged 36, on a Caribbean cruise last Christmas and thought he had steered their marriage away from the Rockefeller rocks.

All of this leads many political observers to the conclusion that the governor's divorce and remarriage will hurt and hurt deeply. It will hurt especially with women who feel that he is setting an example to millions of husbands in favor of divorce.

Security Vs Glamour

Security is all-important to the average wife, especially after she has raised her children and reached middle age — the case of Mary Rockefeller after 31 years of matrimony and five children. If one of the leading citizens of the nation sets a precedent of throwing out his wife in favor of an attractive 36-year-old blonde who then has to leave a husband and four children, it's almost certain that women all over the nation will vote against such a precedent.

They will not want a man who sets that standard for their husbands elevated to the White House.

Note — Gov. Rockefeller has never been too popular with old line GOP leaders and the organization men who make up the backbone of the party. Some, however, were delighted to see him get the nomination because they figured Kennedy would be tough to beat. They were glad to see Rocky run as a sacrifice candidate. Now, however, they are not so sure.

Shirts Off Their Backs

The Internal Revenue Service always gets a lot of beefs from taxpayers filing income returns — and this year was no exception.

At least five men taxpayers sent in shirts with their returns.

Another taxpayer didn't even bother to address his return. He simply drew a picture on the envelope of a naked man in a barrel. The Post Office Department promptly delivered it to the Internal Revenue Office in Washington, D.C.

The Internal Revenue Service also receives a number of "guilty conscience" payments at this time of the year from people who owe back taxes and are trying to get straight with Uncle Sam.

The most unusual of these was sent in by an unidentified person, whose letter contained $310 in cash. It came from the town of Truth or Consequences in New Mexico.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

It is difficult to trace the origin of a bad habit. No one wants to remember how it started. However, a little research shows that the United States began to give money away in large amounts in the middle of World War I. It turned out to be a habit, once started, which could not be curbed. When we give money away, nations dislike us. When we stop, they hate us.

In the second term of Woodrow Wilson, the U. S. began to lend money. It coincided with the emergence of America as a first class power. The money went to friendly powers to help them win the then current war. These nations made solemn pledges to repay the money, plus interest, as soon as the war was over.

As soon as it was won, the diplomatic excuses arrived. Some, like Great Britain, made a pretense of paying the interest but not the principal. Little nations like Finland paid in full, and on time. The Germans, who had been our enemies and killed our fathers, became bankrupt and we sent a man named Owen D. Young to Germany to straighten out their finances.

He did a good job. We sent money to Germany, the nation recovered from its panic inflation, and became industrially strong. The Weimar Republic was assassinated by the National Socialists, whose leader was an Austrian named Adolf Hitler. By the time he was ready to start another war of conquest, Great Britain was pleading for more money. In fact, any nation at all friendly to us measured its loyalty to us by the size of the check we sent.

Franklin D. Roosevelt decided not to lend money outright. It amounted to the same thing but he called it lend-lease. We loaned destroyers, freighters, ammunition, rifles, tanks, planes, wheat, corn, medicine, artillery and the U. S. taxpayers paid for all of these. The Soviet Union soon learned that anyone could play the game so they borrowed and leased $11 billion worth of goods when their nation was bleeding and dying. They were so grateful that, when one of our B-29 bombers landed on their territory, they refused to return it.

They also spied on us and stole our atom bomb. When the war was over, the U. S. had paid a giant share of the cost, and our fellow victors were hurt when we mentioned that lend-lease meant lend-lease, and how about returning some of that material, our atom bomb. When the war was over, the U. S. had paid a giant share of the cost, and our fellow victors were hurt when we mentioned that lend-lease meant lend-lease, and how about returning some of that material, our atom bomb.

A New England governor has just vetoed a bill that would transfer the state's primary from September to June because June or at least paying for it? They made a counter-proposal which seemed fair to Uncle Sam: "How about giving us more money?"

So we did. In the past 17 years, we have doled out $97½ billion in economic and military aid. Billions, that is, Uncle Sam can throw you into jail for owing a little on your income tax, but he has given $8,713,200,000 to Great Britain. Britain's little colony, the Bahamas Islands, refuses to give us a submarine test center unless we lend them $5,000,000 so that they can build sewers.

In the past year, I've been around the world once, and to Europe three times. On these trips I get a chance to talk to a lot of people. The only places where I found that we have true friends — I mean people who like us whether we send aid or not — are Spain, Italy and Thailand. France has taken more than $9 billion from us and spits in our eye.

Vietnam got $2,441,000,000 and flirts with the Soviet Union. India snatched $3,952,000,000 and piously proclaims "We're neutral." West Germany, a loser in World War II as in World War I, has taken $5 billion from us since 1945 and undercuts our prices in the world market. Japan, another loser, took $3,693,000,000 and has expanded economically at a rate as high as 17% per year while we're struggling to hit 5%.

The habit is irrevocable. We now buy friends. They are expensive, and if we cut the annual blackmail by a million or two, some of them threaten to become satellites of Russia.

Ever hear of a country called Upper Volta? They got $3,200,000. How about Mali? They got $6,100,000. Dahomey? Ever hear of it? $5,600,000. Nationalist China got $4,428,000,000 and I'd like to know how anyone can spend that much on an island the size of Formosa. They also get the protection of the 7th Fleet free.

Year after year, the United States goes deeper into debt as Congress makes a big show of independence in cutting off a few hundred millions in foreign aid. Over $52,000,000 went to Cuba until we found we couldn't buy that friend. Russia took the missiles away from the Cubans and still has their loyalty.

Are we so defenseless that we must buy friends? Our children's children will read this page of our history blushing with shame.

West Virginia Legislature Called Today

Special Session
To Deal With Budget Problem

By Donald Tannin

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Legislature will convene in extraordinary session here Monday, in what lawmakers hope will be a one-day stand, to find the money needed to run two welfare programs for the rest of the fiscal year.

The legislature will be asked to provide $457,000 to keep the Work and Training Program and the Aid to Dependent Children Program going until June 30.

The fiscal emergency came to a head during the last week in March when Welfare Commissioner W. Bernard Smith ordered a cutback in payments from 85 to 65 per cent of "need" after the Legislature approved only $600,000 of a request $1.2 million deficiency appropriation.

Gov. W. W. Barron, after meeting with the Board of Public Works, ordered the cuts restored on April 1. The BPW expressed confidence that the money could be found within the present Welfare Department budget by making "economies" in other areas.

The board at that time did not feel a special session was needed. However, after three weeks of meetings the BPW still could not come up with the necessary funds and Barron was forced to call the special session.

Many members of the Legislature felt the budget provided adequate funds for the program. The BPW went along with Smith in his request for a deficiency appropriation of $1.2 million. The House of Delegates recommended this amount but the Senate did not recommend any funds at all. The House - Senate combined Conference committee during the last day of the session then compromised on $600,000.

Several Republican leaders, including Senate Minority Leader John Carrigan of Moundsville and House Minority Leader George Seibert of Wheeling, said they felt an investigation of the Welfare Department should be undertaken.

However, an investigation seems doubtful as most Democratic leaders in both the House and Senate give no indication they favor any such probe.

Barron, in ordering the special session, said it was "necessary in view of the tremendous benefits that have been derived by the state" from the two programs.

Smith said last week he does not foresee any such trouble next fiscal year even though his department's budget is smaller than it was for 1962-63.

The Welfare Commissioner said he felt a stepped up investigation of welfare rolls by his department would result in enough ineligible taken off relief to make up the difference.

W. Va. Converts More Land For Recreation Purposes

Program Designed To Aid Economy

WASHINGTON (AP)—West Virginia may be at the bottom of the states agriculturally speaking, but it shows signs of getting the jump on the others in shifting to a recreational role, a step the Kennedy Administration is suggesting for low-income farm areas.

Farm income in West Virginia averaged only $783 an agricultural unit in 1962, which was less than half the average reported for the next state above it, Alabama.

An agriculture department report Saturday told of increasing conversion of farm land in West Virginia to recreational uses.

"People are turning increasingly to the mountains for relief from summer heat, for recreation, and the satisfaction of owning a place in the country," the department said.

From 1937 to 1962, nearly half the net change in land uses in a wide area in West Virginia studied by the department was from agriculture to recreation.

With the backing of the President, the Agriculture Department is placing great emphasis on programs and measures to encourage farmers to convert, where practicable, farm land into lakes for swimming, fishing and boating, as well as into camps and playgrounds and golf courses for urban residents anxious to get away from cities. The department offers loans, grants and technical aid for such projects.

These programs have the dual goal of reducing crop overproduction and of providing income to farmers unable to make a good living farming.

Gordon Mitzel Of York Is Cold Winner In Motorcycle Hill Climb

Pennsylvanian Sweeps Class A On 2-Star Card

Reiser, Wendt Win "B" Tests; Spills, Fire Mark Program

Gordon Mitzel of York, Pa., rode off with top money by winning the two Class A events in a two-star Free State Riders Motorcycle hill climb yesterday on the Kline Farm at Wiley Ford.

Mitzel, son of famous hill climber Howard Mitzel, who retired last year, blasted his old Indian out of the pit almost without a warmup and climbed the 300-foot grade with his front wheel up in 6.42 seconds, a hill record in the grade 74A qualifying event.

He made a slower ride at 7.16 in the featured 74A finals, but it was good enough to win. His prize money amounted to $86.

"Tee" IS NOSED OUT

Mitzel nosed out 1961 Canadian champ "Tee" Hemmis of Cumberland by one-hundredth of a second in the feature event. Hemmis turned in a 7.17 on his first trip, but took a jarring fall 90 feet up on his effort to edge out Mitzel. He was able to get up and get his Triumph off the course, however.

Tee and his brother Joe Hemmis, U. S. national champion, each wound up with a second and a third in the Class A events, and each won $43. Paul Mayer of York won the $10 fourth prize in the qualifying event, and 1962 Canadian champ R. C. "Bobby" Johnson of Columbus, Ohio, was fourth in the finals.

In the Class 45B qualifying event, Beese Wendt of York was first with 8.05, followed by Clarence Suydam of Easton, Pa. at 8.21, Phil Petrick, 1962 U. S. Class B champ from Easton at 8.23, and Jack Kessler, also of York, at 8.27.

Reiser Is Winner

Tom Reiser of Columbus, Ohio, won the Class 45B finals in 7.37 seconds. Phil Frantz of Cleveland was second at 7.87, Wendt was third at 8.04, and Petrick was fourth at 8.23.

Wendt was the top Class B money winner with $47, Reiser got $33, Suydam, Petrick and Frantz each took home $23, and Kessler, $9.

About 300 persons saw the American Motorcycle Association sanctioned event, for which Crim Strickler of Hollidaysburg, Pa., an AMA official, was referee.

Machine Catches Fire

There was plenty of excitement, starting when Phil Frantz's Harley-Davidson flopped and caught fire at the 110-foot mark in the first event of the afternoon. Other cyclists helped throw dirt on the machine to douse the flames.

In the same event, Phil Petrick's Harley almost got away on a wild ride up the slope, but he hung on and made it to the top. Tommy Reiser took a bad flop at 125 feet, apparently without harm, on his second attempt in the same event.

Abie Haight of Rockford, Ill., turned tumbler when his Indian ran out from under him at the 250-foot stripe. He somersaulted away from the machine and landed on his feet, to applause. He narrowly missed a similar experience in the Class B finals, but controlled the wild Indian long enough to get it over the ridge.

Tee Hemmis' hard fall in the Class A finals was the only spill in the professional class. He was shaken but uninjured.

Dusty Shaver's country music outfit entertained, and the Corri-ganville Volunteer Fire Company ambulance stood by in case of need.

Yanks Set Nine Pan-American Track Records

US Wins 106 Gold Medals, Brazil 14

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—The fourth Pan-American Games ended Sunday with the United States walking off with most of the spoils but not without some unexpected bumps from its Latin neighbors.

The Yanks captured 106 gold medals, 55 silvers and 37 bronzes. The next closest nation, Brazil, took 14 golds. But Uncle Sam had his troubles and failed to sweep unhampered through the field as he had done in the past.

Yank boxers, once undisputed kings of the canvas, managed to eke out only two of 10 golds—and four bronzes. Baseball went to Cuba.

Uncle Sam's women track and field team won six of 10 gold medals. In 1959, they took eight of nine.

The U.S. men's track and field team took 16 of 23 gold medals, counting the disputed gold for the 1600-meter relay. They lost such Yank specialties as the 100 and 200-meter dashes, the 800 and marathon, among others.

U. S. Sets New Record

Of the 14 Pan-Am records turned out this time, Yanks achieved nine.

Uncle Sam's lads lost their midas touch completely in cycling, which isn't an American specialty but was the only shutout of the extravaganza for the Yanks.

Guatemala sent only three athletes. They won two silvers, probably the best ratio of medals to manpower in the games.

As an exercise in hemispheric solidarity and good will, the games had their weaknesses.

Boxers In First Fight

Some of the long-standing friction between Brazil and Argentina erupted in a free-wheeling fist fight among soccer players of the two countries. Some Cubans and Brazilians whooped it up in an intramural battle outside Bom Retiro baseball stadium.

The Canadians and the Yanks yelled about the officiating at the boxing matches and the Brazilians pitched ice cream cones and other missiles at the basketball climax between Brazil and the United States.

Canada angrily announced it would not accept a silver medal in a yacht race won by Argentina.

Cumberland Old G's Face Barton Today In Twilight Battle

Undeclared teams will clash today when the Cumberland Old Germans collide with the Barton Braves in the Twilight Baseball League's feature attraction at 5:30 p. m. at Barton.

Barton has skunked Lonaconing, 3-0, and Gilmore, 11-0, while the Old Germans have whipped Franklin 14-0 and Midland, the 1962 league champions, 12-5.

In other action today, Gilmore (0-1) tackles Keyser (1-0) on the latter's field and Franklin (0-1) battles the Old Exports (0-1) at Midland.

Lonaconing is idle today.

Marilynn Smith Is Peach Blossom Tourney Winner

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (UPI)—Titleholders Tourney winner Marilyn Smith made it two in a row with a 71 Sunday and an even par 216 for 54 holes to take the Peach Blossom women's PGA tournament, two strokes ahead of Muri Lindstrom.

Five golfers tied at 220 for third place in the $7,500 tournament.

Top money winner Mickey Wright, who bowed in a playoff to Miss Smith in the titleholders Monday in Augusta, Ga., shot a 71 in the windup for a 223.

Nicklaus Cops Las Vegas Tournament And $13,000

Posts 72-Hole 273 Finishes 5 Strokes In Front Of Palmer

By BOB MYERS Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—U.S. Open champion Jack Nicklaus, playing with all the emotion of a man moving the lawn, tucked away golf's $60,000 Tournament of Champions Sunday with a final round 3-under-par 69 and a 72-hole total of 273.

Pocketing the top money of $13,000 in this 11th annual desert classic, the methodical 23-year-old slammer virtually loafed in five strokes in front of the defending tournament champion, Arnold Palmer, who had a 68, and Tony Lema, who blazed from behind with a 66 and a tie at 278.

Each won $5,300 in second and third place money.

Hard luck man of the event, which was staged over the sun-baked, par 36-36-72 Desert Inn Country Club course, was Bill Casper Jr. He was forced to withdraw after eight holes swollen of an inflamed, badly swollen left hand.

The amiable, 31-year-old Casper was four strokes back of Nicklaus, the nearest to him at that time, when he bowed out. It cost Casper what appeared to be an excellent chance for the second-place money.

Nicklaus, who led in tournament record-breaking fashion from the first round on, played Sunday's round in an almost casual 35-34-69. His 273 was better.

Cal Koonce won his first victory of the season as the surprising cub took their sixth game in their last seven starts. Tony Cloninger was the loser.

Lou Brock had three of the Cubs' six hits off Cloninger. Hank Fischer and Denny LeMaster. He scored the deciding run on Ken Hubbs' sacrifice fly after tripling in the fifth.

Renew, a former Braves farmhand, started the scoring in the third with a 420-foot homer, his first of the year.

Frostburg Downs Lonaconing, 8-1, To Grab Pen-Mar League Lead

Mt. Savage, Barrelville Also Triumph

Peace Picks Up Second Victory For Merchants

Big John Keister went the distance for Barrelville's Old Exports, yielded seven hits, fanned six and issued four bases on balls. Keister, a righthander, blanked Hyndman until the ninth inning.

Ronnie Bowman started for Hyndman but was yanked in favor of Jim Norris in the eighth inning. Bowman, who gave up four runs and seven hits, was tagged with the loss.

Morris Cracks Triple

In the opening inning, Barrelville coupled a base on balls with three hits and two sacrifices for four runs. Leroy Morris cracked a three-run triple and scored the Old Exports' final run during the four-run outburst in the top of the ninth.

Hyndman grouped a base on balls with an error and singles for pinch hitters Ray Morgart and Harvey Smith and Jimmy Miller for its three tallies in the final stanza.

Keister smacked a double and two singles in four official trips for the Exports. Leroy Morris, Ronnie Neubeiser and Joe Glass collected two hits each. Miller garnered two of Hyndman's seven batters.

"Doc" Jamison of Hyndman turned in the fielding gem in the sixth when he went to his left to spear Donnie Lewis' hot grounder and tossed out the batter.

Flag raising exercises in charge of Explorer Troop No. 60 preceded the season home opener at Hyndman. Dr. John Topper of Hyndman, league president, tossed out the first ball and the newly-organized community band performed.

The line scores:

Ralph Peace pitched Frostburg to an 8-1 triumph over the Lonaconing Independents yesterday afternoon at Lonaconing to give the Merchants the lead in the Pen-Mar Baseball League.

Two of the three teams which copped their Pen-Mar openers last Sunday were defeated yesterday. Mt. Savage beat the Cumberland Hermans 5-1 at Mt. Savage, and Barrelville downed Hyndman, 8-3, on the latter team's diamond.

Frostburg emerged from yesterday's action as the lone unbeaten team with a 2-0 mark. Hyndman is 0-2, and the other four clubs all have 1-1 records.

In the contest at Lonaconing, which was the Independents' home opener, Coney mayor Harold W. Moyer threw out the first ball in pre-game festivities.

Commit Five Errors

The ball was dropped by the Lonaconing catcher, and it must have been a bad omen. In the game itself, the Independents committed five errors which helped Frostburg's cause.

Several errors set up a three-run first inning for the Merchants, which was highlighted by Dick Pitko's two-run double. Pitko doubled again later in the game, and Gene Zumpano and Donnie Nave both singled twice.

Peace spaced eight Lonaconing hits, walked only one man and struck out five in picking up his second straight win. The loss was charged to starter Jerry Ritchie, who worked the first seven innings for the Independents.

Ev Spiker and John Thomas had four of the eight hits obtained by Coney. Bob Mundeno also belted a three-base hit for the Independents.

Mongold Effective

Righthander Harold Mongold who had been away from the diamond was for two years, proved effective in his return yesterday at Mt. Savage. Working the first eight innings before retiring with a stiff shoulder, Mongold allowed the Hermans only three singles. Wayne Johnson hurled the last frame for the Old Germans.

Mt. Savage collected only six hits off Wellington Donahue, but two of them were homers good for four runs. Bobby Robertson rapped a three-run smash in the first inning, and Junior Perry clouted a bases-empty drive in the fifth. Robertson and Perry also had a single apiece.

Howard Reynolds collected two singles and Johnny Price obtained the other to account for the Hermans' only safeties.

Fort Hill Ousts Frederick As CVAL Track Champs

Sentinels Break Three Records; FSTC Tops Bowie

Fort Hill ended Frederick High School's three-year domination of the Cumberland Valley Athletic League track and field championship Saturday by scoring 86 points to win the league's annual meet at Frederick.

While they were at it coach Paul Flick's Sentinel cindermen broke three CVAL records and tied a fourth, setting new marks in the 440-yard dash, mile relay broad jump, and equalling the 440-yard relay standard.

Host Frederick, the defending champions who had won three straight titles, finished second with 76 points. Allegany was third with 40 points, followed by South Hagerstown (34), Martinsburg (26), Westminster (7) and North Hagerstown, five.

Frostburg State Teachers College scored its first track win of the season Saturday, easily defeating Bowie State Teachers, 77-32, in dual meet at Bowie.

The CVAL competition Saturday marked the third 1963 start for the Sentinels, who won the Handley Invitational at Winchester three weeks ago, and finished in a tie for ninth place in the week-end Bellaire (Ohio) Relays a week ago Saturday.

Fort Hill's crack mile relay team of Robert (Dump) Wallace, Richard Robinson, Gene Zais and Colin Smith set a new school and meet record by churning the distance in 3:25.6. The old CVAL record was 3:31.4, set in 1961 by Frederick, and the former school mark was 3:27.7, established just the week before at Bellaire.

Wallace hung up a new mark in the 440-yard dash, his 50.1-second performance besting the 50.5 turned in by Frederick's Hildebrand last year. Jack Williams broad jumped 22 feet and three-quarter inches to eclipse the mark of 21-7 by Fort Hill's Cosgrove in 1959.

The 440-relay team of William, Smith, Robinson and Leroy Peck tied the CVAL record of 4:46 seconds set by Frederick in 1960, and at the same time recorded a new school mark for the event.

There were 15 events on Saturday's program, and Fort Hill finished first in eight of them in bringing the Sentinels their first CVAL championship since 1959. Flick's "rookie" year as track coach at the local school.

Allegany failed to finish first in any event, but the Campers placed in most of them to rack up 40 points and third place in the final team standing.

Curtis Mason, Martinsburg's heralded distance runner, broke his own CVAL record for the mile run. His 4:28.7 time bettered by four and one-tenth seconds the mark he set last year. Fort Hill's Tom Elliott finished second in the mile, and his 4:36 clocking was good enough to break the school record.

Frostburg State, copping 11 of 13 events in its dual test with Bowie, scored its first win against two opponents.

Cards Defeat Reds In 10th, 7-4, After Losing First, 5-4

CINCINNATI (AP)—Powered by Gene Oliver's two-run homer, the St. Louis Cardinals exploded for four runs in the 10th inning Sunday, salvaging the second game of a doubleheader by beating Cincinnati, 7-4. The Reds won the opener, 5-4.

Reliever Bill Henry paved the way to his second defeat by furnishing Bill White's intended sacrifice. Leo Burke then singled, driving in a run, and another scored on a passed ball after Al Worthington replaced Henry. Next Oliver hit his second homer of the season to ice the game for Bobby Shantz, now 1-1.

The Reds led throughout the first game, a wild-hitting affair that saw 25 hits—eight of them doubles.

Three hits, two walks and Ray Sadecki's balk gave Cincinnati three runs in the opening inning and the Cardinals never caught up.

Camilo Pascual Masters Yanks

Strikes Out Eight, Defeats Terry, 4-1

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Curve artist Camilo Pascual pitched Minnesota to a 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees Sunday as the Twins salvaged the finale of a three-game series.

Roger Maris spoiled Pascual's shutout with a solo home run, his third, into the right field bullpen in the seventh inning. Maris also doubled in the ninth.

Pascual permitted six hits, struck out eight and walked one in winning his third straight after three losses. He bested Ralph Terry in a duel of 20-game winners of 1962.

Pascual was his sharpest in the fourth when Tom Tresh tripled to deep center field with one out. But Pascual struck out Mickey Mantle and Maris to leave Tresh stranded.

HE'LL BE BACK—Pitcher Jim Umbricht, 32, is scheduled to soon return to active duty with the Houston Colts, after apparently successful surgery for the removal of a malignant growth from his right thigh.

Colts And Phils Split Twin Bill

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Behind the pitching of Dick Farrell, the Houston Colts salvaged the finale of their four-game series with the Philadelphia Phillies Sunday, winning the nightcap 6-2 after two ninth-inning misplays helped the home team take their third straight in the opener, 6-5.

In the opener, a misjudged line drive by Bobby Wine went for a triple and opened the gates for the Phillies' ninth-inning rally. Re-liever Hal Woodeschick walked pinch hitter Don Demeter and Taylor singled home the tying run.

Pinch hitter Wayne Graham then tapped a ball toward the mound and Woodeschick tossed it to catcher John Bateman. Demeter slid into the rookie, knocked the ball from his hands and scored the winning run.

High School Students Help VA Hospitals
Students of Allegany County schools have answered an appeal from Eastern Area Red Cross enlisting the assistance of Junior Red Cross in production of articles for use in VA hospitals.

The program has been under the direction of Miss Margaret Doak, chairman of Junior Red Cross for Allegany County Chapter and with the cooperation of Theodore P. Foote, supervisor of Art education for Allegany County Board of Education.

Items made by the students were specifically requested by the VA hospitals, and include 50 Easter party mats, sent to VA Hospital, Albany, N.Y.; 10 baseball mobiles for VA Hospital, Marian, Indiana, and 240 all-purpose greeting cards requested by Brown Hospital VA Center, Dayton, Ohio.

The Easter party mats were made by the junior high classes at Allegany High School under the direction of Mrs. Ethel C. Bruce, and Gertrude Martin's art classes at Allegany prepared the baseball mobiles.

The greeting cards were made by junior and senior high school groups at Fort Hill under the direction of Thomas Murphy and Mrs. Linda Finn, at Beall High School directed by Mrs. Lucille Cinquegrani; Valley High under direction of Charles Gillis; Bruce High directed by Frank Roberts, and seventh grade students at Penn Avenue directed by Miss Mildred Beck.

Mt. Savage students prepared greeting cards in block print under the direction of Edwin H. Gillis.

Driver Dies As Rig Hits Abutment
One person was killed and two others badly injured in vehicle crashes in nearby Pennsylvania over the weekend.

Fatally injured yesterday at 9 a. m. was Billie G. Whitson, 38, of Souderton, Pa., when the tractor-trailer he was operating ran against a bridge abutment on the Pennsylvania Turnpike about one mile east of the Everett state police barracks.

State Police said the man, alone in the vehicle, apparently fell asleep.

A 15-year-old girl and her father were admitted to Bedford County Memorial Hospital in Bedford Saturday after a two-vehicle accident on U. S. 30 near Breezewood.

The girls, Judith A. Lynch, Pleasant Hills, Pa., was admitted in a critical condition, suffering from a possible fractured skull and lacerations. Her condition was listed as fair yesterday, as was her father, Hugh Lynch, who suffered lacerations of the forehead and left arm.

State Police said the girl, in spite of her age, was operating and lost control of a car which ran off the shoulder and back on the highway to collide with an oncoming tractor-trailer operated by Lloyd F. Conlon, 55, of near Bedford.

Booklet On Soil Now Available
The latest publication by the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, "Know Your Soil," is now available at the local SCS office, Room 1, Post Office Building.

Martin M. Gordon, work unit conservationist, said the publication would be handy for suburban dwellers with a soil problem in his garden or engineers looking for a building site.

The booklet explains how soil scientists of the Department of Agriculture are gradually mapping soils in the country. There are 124 different kinds of soils in Allegany County, according to Kenneth M. Stone, soil scientist with the local SCS.

Mr. Gordon said the original purpose of making soil surveys was to provide information to the nation's farmers so that could better take care of food producing soils. Now, more and more people in all walks of life are seeing the need to know about soil. Septic tanks that won't work, houses that slide from their foundations, and highways that break up, might be prevented by knowing about soils, Mr. Gordon added.

Chemical Basis For Psychosis Being Sought
(Third of a three-part series on Mental Health)
By Dr. HARVEY J. TOMPKINS
Consultant, National Association for Mental Health as told to Helena Frost United Press International

A small French boy, visiting an American zoo, watched a monkey and at last said with awe: "Just like peoples!" He had discovered one good reason why men of science are studying monkeys—to understand man.

They have found that monkeys denied a mother at birth and reared in total isolation develop behavior which resembles human schizophrenia.

And they found in the blood of some of these abnormal monkeys evidence of the same metabolic disturbance previously found in schizophrenic patients.

"They" are two different research teams who are looking for the causes of mental disorders and ways to prevent them. For this is a story of a scientific chain reaction: Something discovered in one laboratory triggers a new productive inquiry in another.

Seeking Factor
A number of research groups are seeking a possible biochemical genetic factor in schizophrenia; because some of us are born vulnerable to this "psychosis of youth" which "shatters the personality." And other scientists are trying to find out what it is in environment that precipitates a schizophrenic breakdown; because vulnerability does not mean inevitability.

So we have Dr. Jacques Gottlieb, psychiatrist, and Dr. Charles E. Frohman, biochemist, applying biochemistry to psychiatry at the Lafayette Clinic in Detroit, and Dr. Harry Harlow studying environment and the behavior of rhesus monkeys at the University of Wisconsin's Primate Laboratory. It was here that the two projects came to a meeting ground.

If Dr. Frohman and Gottlieb succeed in pinpointing a protein substance in the blood that can identify schizophrenia before a breakdown, it may lead us to the answer that will prevent the breakdown. It will take time and the painstaking patience of science to single one protein out of the hundreds in the blood.

Has Found Slow-Down
But Dr. Frohman has partially isolated it, and where he has found it in the plasma of schizophrenic patients, he has also found a related slow-down in cell metabolism, that ceaseless change in the body's cells which is energy; indeed life itself.

Dr. Gottlieb correlates the facts: "This disturbance in metabolism is consistent with the schizophrenic's lack of energy, his inability to care about what is happening around him."

But other biochemical problems must be answered: Is this serum factor found only in schizophrenics, or a normal protein found in abnormal quantity? Why is it found in certain types of schizophrenia and not in others? Is it a cause of disease, or does it get into the blood after birth, from something in the environment?

These are important questions and the reason why the Research Foundation of the National Association for Mental Health has contributed to the support of the Detroit research project for four successive years.

$4,500 Settlement Ends Damage Suit
A so-called friendly suit was settled according to papers filed Friday in the Allegany County Circuit Court House which indicate the plaintiffs settled for $4,500.

The suit was between Renzie B. Fint and Ora E. Fint, parents of Shirley L. Fint of Lonaconing, against John J. Deniker, of Barton.

The girl was a passenger in a car driven by the defendant on December 3, 1960. The car was traveling on Maryland Route 55 about a half mile north of Midland when it went out of control and hit a bridge abutment, hospitalizing Miss Fint.

Carl Belt Firm Given Contract
SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Board of Education Friday awarded a Monongalia County firm a contract to build three new dormitories and a dining hall addition at West Liberty State College.

Baker & Coombs, Morgantown, submitted the apparent low bid of $1,347,700 last Monday in Charleston.

The contract, calling for construction of two new dormitories for men and one for women, was awarded prior to the close of a two-day board meeting here and at Romney Deaf and Blind school.

Before adjourning, the board scheduled a one-day meeting in Charleston June 17.

During its business session in Romney Thursday, the board awarded contracts for some construction at Fairmont State College and the Romney school.

The board awarded a $289,200 contract to George D. Shaw Co., Fairmont, for renovation of the Fairmont State College administration building. It also gave a $289,571 contract to Carl Belt Inc., Cumberland, Md., to erect a new classroom building and remodel the dining hall at Romney Deaf School.

In other action Thursday, the board approved four-year scholarships to 10 district winners of this year's American Legion oratorical contests and eight winners of the Veterans of Foreign Wars essay contests.

Firemen To Hold Convention In Oakland June 6

Metz Is Slated As New President

Officials of the Allegany-Garrett Volunteer Firemen's Association yesterday completed plans for the association's 51st annual meeting, which will be held Thursday, June 6, in Oakland.

The final plans were adopted during a meeting held in the Bloomington Fire Hall and attended by delegates from 22 of the 31 companies in the association.

Business sessions of both the association and its Ladies Auxiliary are scheduled at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

A memorial service to honor all deceased volunteer firemen will be held at 4 p.m.

Both business sessions and the memorial service will be held in St. Paul's Methodist Church in Oakland.

Will Hold Parade

A dinner meeting will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. in Hinebaugh's restaurant.

The convention parade will form at 7 p.m. and march off at 7:30 p.m.

Up to 200 delegates and their wives from the 31 fire companies and 28 auxiliary units are expected to attend, along with officers of the Maryland State Firemen's Association.

Presiding at the official sessions will be Charles Crawford, Bowling Green, president of the bi-county association, and Mrs. Minnie Thomas, Clarysville, Auxiliary president.

The annual election of officers will be held during the one-day meeting.

Announced candidates include Luther E. Metz, Barton, who is slated to become president. He is now serving as vice president and is a past president of Barton Hose Company.

Candidates for vice president include William Clatterbuck, Deer Park; Willys Wilson, Bedford Road; and Mike Walters, Corriganville. Francis Fatkin, Clarysville, has announced for treasurer.

Nominations will be asked from the floor before the election.

Carnival Set

Plans were made yesterday for a meeting of the Appropriations committee May 13 at 8 p.m. in the Good Will fire hall, Lonaconing, and of the Carnival committee May 27 at 8 p.m. in the Frostburg fire hall.

The association is planning to hold a carnival the second week of September at the LaVale Plaza shopping center.

A memorial service was held yesterday for John Meech, of Anne Arundel County, a candidate for second vice president of the state association, who died recently.

Visitors included Robert Byrns, of the University of Maryland fire service; Marbery Gates, Rockville, Legislative committee chairman, and Spencer J. H. Brown, Sandy Springs, a past president.

Henry Wintermeyer, Credentials committee chairman, urged all companies to forward information as soon as possible.

Dinner was served by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Bloomington unit.

Fire Protection Set For Circus

Members of the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company will meet today at noon and 5 p.m. to provide fire protection at the circus at Fairgo, according to Alan Deffenbaugh, chief.

Crews will be on hand at both the circus and the fire hall.

The fire chief said firemen who cannot report at noon or 5 p.m. may drive directly to the fair grounds.

Crone Aboard Fiske

Paul D. Crone, electrician's mate fireman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Crone, RD 3, Bedford Road, is serving aboard the radar picket destroyer Fiske, now on a goodwill cruise of the Mediterranean.

Former Principal Honored

LaVale Lions Will Sponsor 1963 Sabre Distributed At Fort Hill

The LaVale Lions Club has purchased over two tons of chicken for its fourth annual chicken barbecue to be held in conjunction with the annual Sports Car Races this weekend at Cumberland Municipal Airport.

Harry E. White, president of the LaVale club, said the chicken will be sold in box lunches or in carry-out containers for the convenience of patrons of the car races which are being sponsored by the Cumberland Lions Club.

The chicken will be sold on the parking lot of the LaVale Fire Company on Saturday from 8 a.m. until midnight and Sunday from 5 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for the club's sight conservation program, park program and other civic improvements.

William H. Seiler and Robert H. Loffert are co-chairmen of the activity and other chairmen include Harry E. White, procurer; Samuel Cozad, publicity; J. Arthur Shank, advance ticket sales; Cameron Otto, finance, and George Emerson, grounds.

Chefs who will prepare the chicken will be Dr. Paul Popovich, David Miller, Mr. Loffert and Mr. Seiler.

Their major task here will be to tell city departments which records should be kept and which should be disposed of.

In connection with the visits, they will prepare a record retention schedule which will tell each department which records are to be kept and which ones are to be destroyed after a term which will be set up in the schedule.

The general plan, it was explained, is to dispose of routine records after a three-year period.

It is possible that the men will recommend that some city records which have historical significance be sent to the Hall of Records for permanent keeping.

The City got rid of some records last week.

During a search of the files of the City Clerk's Office, books containing birth records from 1912-1917, and death records from 1891 to 1904 were found.

They were turned over to the Allegany County Health Department for incorporation in official records of the county and state.

The value of the birth and death records is somewhat questionable, since some of the ink is faded from water from one of the many floods which plagued the business section before the flood protection project was completed here.

Mr. Straubinger is well known here, as he spent considerable time here about two years ago checking virtually all of the records of Allegany County.

He said the records check at the Court House is complete except for the Clerk's office and that this is to be completed this year.

Records which are to be disposed of are either burned—as is required for some types of documents, or are sold as waste paper.

Atty. Gen. Finan Says Pension Bill Unconstitutional

BALTIMORE (AP)—Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan has ruled that a bill to provide pensions for former Maryland governors was unconstitutional.

It was expected that Finan would also declare invalid a bill that would provide pensions for former Maryland state legislators.

Both bills were passed in the 1963 General Assembly.

Finan cited two provisions in the Maryland Constitution as bases for his decision.

One provides for an annual salary of $15,000 for the governor, and the other states the General Assembly may not grant any extra compensation to any public official after he is out of office.

Official while he is in office.

About 150 other bills will be acted upon by Gov. Tawes Monday in his last bill signing session. He is expected to veto some 30 to 40 bills, among them presumably the pension bills.

Invited guest speaker at the luncheon was Paul T. Pitcher, a former trial magistrate, now a member of the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

Commissioner Pitcher has visited this area on numerous occasions and has conducted Workmen Compensation hearings here.

Mr. Pitcher outlined the history and operation of his commission. He said Maryland stands far ahead of many states in protection of workers, and that compensation for men and women injured while at work is among the highest in any state.

Judge Paul Martin, of Reisterstown, president of the association, announced that an executive board meeting of the association will be held at Lord Baltimore Hotel Saturday to complete plans for the association's annual convention to be held in Ocean City.

Magistrates Weatherholt and Thomas G. Barton, Cresaptown, are members of the executive board and will attend.

Officials of Anne Arundel County, court attaches and several state officials were guests, and all past presidents of the organization were introduced. The program was arranged by Judge Ralph C. Boyd of Ferndale, who presided.

Stanley Paul, executive secretary of the association, as required by the by-laws, read a resolution which broadened the membership to include not only trial magistrates, peoples court, police court, juvenile court and municipal judges to membership but would also open its membership to members of the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

The resolution, which had been previously approved by a committee and by the executive board, was passed unanimously.

Commissioner Pitcher, already a member, expressed his thanks on behalf of the other members of the commission.

A 20-year-old former waitress for the Queen City Restaurant was thrown over the handle bars of the bicycle she was riding yesterday afternoon on Route 50, near New Creek, W. Va., where she was visiting relatives.

Magistrates To Plan '63 Convention

Weatherholt Talks At Glen Burnie

Trial Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt was one of the speakers Saturday at the annual spring luncheon meeting of the Maryland Trial Magistrates Association, held at the Barn Restaurant on Ritchie Highway north of Glen Burnie.

Magistrate Weatherholt, who is second vice president of the state association, outlined work of the Judge Brune Committee on the organization of a statewide Conference of Judges of Courts of Limited Jurisdiction.

He explained that Gov. J. Millard Tawes, some months ago, requested that the Administrator of the Courts assist the trial magistrates, judges of peoples courts, of municipal courts and juvenile courts in the formation of such an organization to promote more uniformity in administration, justice and service to the public.

Serving as a member of this committee and also as chairman of a subcommittee on seminars, Mr. Weatherholt explained that a seminar for about 30 newly appointed judges had been held a week ago at the University of Maryland. This, he said, was a forerunner of things to come. He noted that a two-day workshop is to be held in Baltimore for all magistrates and judges later this month and that all judges are expected to attend.

Invited guest speaker at the luncheon was Paul T. Pitcher, a former trial magistrate, now a member of the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

Commissioner Pitcher has visited this area on numerous occasions and has conducted Workmen Compensation hearings here.

Mr. Pitcher outlined the history and operation of his commission. He said Maryland stands far ahead of many states in protection of workers, and that compensation for men and women injured while at work is among the highest in any state.

Verdery Will Head Concert Unit

Member Drive Is Launched

Francis D. Verdery of LaVale was elected new president of the Tri-State Community Concert Association last night at the kickoff dinner meeting for the association's 1963-64 membership campaign.

About 100 persons attended the dinner at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

During a concerted campaign ending at 1 p.m. Saturday, the association hopes to reach its goal of 1,500 members. Letters were sent last month to the present membership of the association asking them to renew their memberships by mail. Some 220 have been received to date which leaves some 1,280 members to be signed up to reach the goal this week.

Last year's membership included 1,197 adults and 320 students.

Headquarters for the membership campaign this week will be the Chamber of Commerce office at the corner of Baltimore and North Liberty streets.

Other officers elected yesterday to serve with Mr. Verdery, a present member of the board of directors, are Mrs. Rudolph Steinberger, first vice president; Mrs. Robert D. Bittle, re-elected second vice president; membership chairman; Albert D. Darby, third vice president; publicity chairman; Ronald J. Downey, re-elected treasurer, and J. William Hunt, concert chairman.

Two appointive officers also were named by the board of directors. Miss Sara E. Wright, reappointed executive secretary, and Mrs. Franklin W. Kremer, corresponding secretary.

In her talk at yesterday's kickoff dinner, Mrs. Bittle stressed that two "tremendous attractions" have been booked for the coming season. The Goldovsky Grand Opera Company has been signed to present "Tosca" in the Fort Hill High School auditorium on October 2 and the Boston Pops Orchestra next March 31.

The number of additional concerts will be determined by the success of the membership drive. The association's guarantee with the promoter calls for at least three concerts with more if the drive is more successful.

To conduct the 1963-64 campaign, Mrs. Bittle has lined up a crew of 18 team captains and 90 workers, 61 of whom helped in last year's campaign.

City To Close Registration Books May 13

Boost Is Noted In New Voters

Citizens of Cumberland who are not registered but wish to vote in the May 21 fluoridation referendum have just six days, including today, to register.

Voting books of the city will be closed May 13 at 5 p.m. so they can be prepared for the referendum.

There has been a slight increase in voter registration since the special election was set up, and numerous voters have come to City Hall to make changes in their voting records.

City Clerk Wallace G. Ulery said voters who are not sure they are registered, or do not know where they should vote, should call the City Clerk's Office.

The election will be held on Tuesday, May 21, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at 15 polling places throughout the city.

The referendum question will appear on voting machines as follows:

"Charter amendment proposing the prohibition of the use of fluoride in the water supply of the City of Cumberland, Maryland."

Voters will have a choice of pulling Yes or No levers. The notice of election issued by the Mayor and Council states the effect of a Yes or No as:

"If a majority of the people vote 'Yes' at the election, then there will be no fluoride in the water supply. If a majority of the people vote 'No', there will be fluoride placed in the water supply by the City."

James S. Mathews, president of Circle K International, challenged the members of the new Circle K Club at Allegany Community College, to strive for excellence in their educational attainments.

Mr. Mathews, a senior at Randolph-Macon College in Ashland, Va., was guest speaker at the charter banquet for the new club at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club Saturday evening.

The speaker reminded his audience that Ralph Waldo Emerson's declaration of intellectual independence of 1837 is as true today as it was 126 years ago. Emerson urged Americans then seek truth from nature, to learn from experience by accepting what is true but not simply because it is old, and to take concerted action on the truths learned.

Ray D. Riley of Westminster, lieutenant governor of the Ninth Division of Kiwanis Capital District, presented the charter for the new club to Daniel Carlom
